

TOTAL OF 2,772 NAMES IN LISTS FOR TWO DAYS

THIRTY-NINE HOOSIERS INCLUDED
AMONG THEM.

SEVERELY WOUNDED ARE 641

Summary to Date

ARMY.
Killed in action (including 395 at sea)	25,968
Dead of wounds	11,610
Dead of disease	17,246
Dead of accident and other causes	2,396
Wounded in action	127,555
Missing in action (including prisoners)	19,246
Total	207,369
MARINE CORPS.
Deaths	2,056
Wounded in action	3,989
Missing in action	450
In hands of enemy	47
Total	5,622

WASHINGTON, January 6.—A total of 2,772 names appeared in the army casualty reports made public today and yesterday, 1,579 today and 2,293 yesterday. Today's list was made up as follows: Killed in action, 125; dead of wounds, 130; dead of disease, 181; dead of accident and other causes, 15; dead of airplane accident, 1; severely wounded, 641; wounded, degree undetermined, 9; slightly wounded, 62; missing in action, 19.

Monday's list was made up entirely of severely wounded.

Indians included in lists for both days were:

PRIVATE RALPH M. CASSADAY, 328 East Hill street, Wabash, killed in action.

PRIVATE PAUL J. DUCK, Sandford, dead of wounds.

PRIVATE VICTOR HENDRICKSKI, 411 Olive street, South Bend, dead of wounds.

PRIVATE WILBUR M. RUBY, Sellersburg, dead of wounds.

PRIVATE HELMER H. JOHNSON, Lyons, dead of disease.

PRIVATE ROBERT H. THORNTON, Knightstown, severely wounded.

PRIVATE DALIAS S. CHAPPELL, Fortville, severely wounded.

PRIVATE JOHN J. SHULER, Paragon, severely wounded.

PRIVATE WILLIAM POHLKOTTE, 510 Iowa street, Indianapolis, missing in action.

PRIVATE FRED RHEIL, 1219 South Meridian street, Indianapolis, slightly wounded.

PRIVATE WILLIAM HAKSTRA, 714 West Main street, New Albany, slightly wounded.

PRIVATE ALFRED H. SCHIEWER, 302 McKim street, Indianapolis, slightly wounded.

PRIVATE LAUREL W. INGRAM, Dugger, slightly wounded.

PRIVATE CHRIS JOHNSON, Elwood, slightly wounded.

PRIVATE JASON HANDEL, Seymour, slightly wounded.

PRIVATE WILLIAM WEINER, 712 Hamilton street, Harrison, slightly wounded.

PRIVATE RICHARD PETER GONZALES, 145 Hamilton avenue, Shreveport, slightly wounded. (No such list in office in Postal Guide.)

CORPORAL DWIGHT BORD, Bala-bridge, killed in action.

LIEUTENANT-SERGEANT EARL J. HOBSON, Bensenville, dead of accident.

PRIVATE LEROY WRIGHT, 4651 High street, Ft. Wayne, dead of disease.

SERGEANT CHESTER E. SCHULZ, 300 Jefferson avenue, Evansville, severely wounded.

SERGEANT WILLIAM H. MITCHELL, 181 South Hudson avenue, Indianapolis, severely wounded.

CORPORAL RALPH G. PATTERSON, 1818 West North street, Muncie, severely wounded.

PRIVATE PAUL A. STEWARD, 418 South Welch street, Garrett, severely wounded.

PRIVATE RICHARD WATKINS, Indianapolis, severely wounded.

PRIVATE FRED ELLIS, Seelyville, severely wounded.

PRIVATE JOHN DIOSAPULOS,

the committee's hearing would be resumed next Friday, instead of Tuesday, as planned, because of the absence of Senator Reed, of Missouri, who desires to question Alfred L. Becker, of New York, who is to be recalled.

No Wonder Huns Hurried to Sign the Armistice

PARIS, January 6 (Havas).—Germany hurried to request the armistice when she saw that a new allied offensive was to be started on the Lorraine front on November 12 by 60,000 men under command of General De Castelnau, says the Excelsior.

American and French troops, it says, were concentrated on the front between Briel and Chateau Salins. They were supported by 3,000 guns of all calibers and had 26 tanks available on a front of about forty-five miles. Duke Albrecht, of Wurttemberg, the German commander on this front had available only twenty-five divisions of inferior fighting quality. These divisions contained approximately 150,000 men. He had only 1,000 guns.

This allied attack, the Excelsior continues, would have carried the war into annexed Lorraine and into Rhineland, threatening to cut off the Germans in Belgium and in the Ardennes from their bases.

German general headquarters realizing that the divisions on other sectors were exhausted and that its forces were demoralized and worn out, averted a catastrophe by pleading for an armistice. The Excelsior concludes: "The success of the offensive was assured, but it could not have made victory more certain than it already was because Germany accepted all our conditions."

Marshal Foch deemed it useless to cause further shedding of blood and consented to stop hostilities, although Germany was then in a desperate plight.

The Excelsior concludes: "The success of the offensive was assured, but it could not have made victory more certain than it already was because Germany accepted all our conditions."

German general headquarters realizing that the divisions on other sectors were exhausted and that its forces were demoralized and worn out, averted a catastrophe by pleading for an armistice. The Excelsior concludes: "The success of the offensive was assured, but it could not have made victory more certain than it already was because Germany accepted all our conditions."

German general headquarters realizing that the divisions on other sectors were exhausted and that its forces were demoralized and worn out, averted a catastrophe by pleading for an armistice. The Excelsior concludes: "The success of the offensive was assured, but it could not have made victory more certain than it already was because Germany accepted all our conditions."

German general headquarters realizing that the divisions on other sectors were exhausted and that its forces were demoralized and worn out, averted a catastrophe by pleading for an armistice. The Excelsior concludes: "The success of the offensive was assured, but it could not have made victory more certain than it already was because Germany accepted all our conditions."

German general headquarters realizing that the divisions on other sectors were exhausted and that its forces were demoralized and worn out, averted a catastrophe by pleading for an armistice. The Excelsior concludes: "The success of the offensive was assured, but it could not have made victory more certain than it already was because Germany accepted all our conditions."

German general headquarters realizing that the divisions on other sectors were exhausted and that its forces were demoralized and worn out, averted a catastrophe by pleading for an armistice. The Excelsior concludes: "The success of the offensive was assured, but it could not have made victory more certain than it already was because Germany accepted all our conditions."

German general headquarters realizing that the divisions on other sectors were exhausted and that its forces were demoralized and worn out, averted a catastrophe by pleading for an armistice. The Excelsior concludes: "The success of the offensive was assured, but it could not have made victory more certain than it already was because Germany accepted all our conditions."

German general headquarters realizing that the divisions on other sectors were exhausted and that its forces were demoralized and worn out, averted a catastrophe by pleading for an armistice. The Excelsior concludes: "The success of the offensive was assured, but it could not have made victory more certain than it already was because Germany accepted all our conditions."

German general headquarters realizing that the divisions on other sectors were exhausted and that its forces were demoralized and worn out, averted a catastrophe by pleading for an armistice. The Excelsior concludes: "The success of the offensive was assured, but it could not have made victory more certain than it already was because Germany accepted all our conditions."

German general headquarters realizing that the divisions on other sectors were exhausted and that its forces were demoralized and worn out, averted a catastrophe by pleading for an armistice. The Excelsior concludes: "The success of the offensive was assured, but it could not have made victory more certain than it already was because Germany accepted all our conditions."

German general headquarters realizing that the divisions on other sectors were exhausted and that its forces were demoralized and worn out, averted a catastrophe by pleading for an armistice. The Excelsior concludes: "The success of the offensive was assured, but it could not have made victory more certain than it already was because Germany accepted all our conditions."

German general headquarters realizing that the divisions on other sectors were exhausted and that its forces were demoralized and worn out, averted a catastrophe by pleading for an armistice. The Excelsior concludes: "The success of the offensive was assured, but it could not have made victory more certain than it already was because Germany accepted all our conditions."

German general headquarters realizing that the divisions on other sectors were exhausted and that its forces were demoralized and worn out, averted a catastrophe by pleading for an armistice. The Excelsior concludes: "The success of the offensive was assured, but it could not have made victory more certain than it already was because Germany accepted all our conditions."

German general headquarters realizing that the divisions on other sectors were exhausted and that its forces were demoralized and worn out, averted a catastrophe by pleading for an armistice. The Excelsior concludes: "The success of the offensive was assured, but it could not have made victory more certain than it already was because Germany accepted all our conditions."

German general headquarters realizing that the divisions on other sectors were exhausted and that its forces were demoralized and worn out, averted a catastrophe by pleading for an armistice. The Excelsior concludes: "The success of the offensive was assured, but it could not have made victory more certain than it already was because Germany accepted all our conditions."

German general headquarters realizing that the divisions on other sectors were exhausted and that its forces were demoralized and worn out, averted a catastrophe by pleading for an armistice. The Excelsior concludes: "The success of the offensive was assured, but it could not have made victory more certain than it already was because Germany accepted all our conditions."

German general headquarters realizing that the divisions on other sectors were exhausted and that its forces were demoralized and worn out, averted a catastrophe by pleading for an armistice. The Excelsior concludes: "The success of the offensive was assured, but it could not have made victory more certain than it already was because Germany accepted all our conditions."

German general headquarters realizing that the divisions on other sectors were exhausted and that its forces were demoralized and worn out, averted a catastrophe by pleading for an armistice. The Excelsior concludes: "The success of the offensive was assured, but it could not have made victory more certain than it already was because Germany accepted all our conditions."

German general headquarters realizing that the divisions on other sectors were exhausted and that its forces were demoralized and worn out, averted a catastrophe by pleading for an armistice. The Excelsior concludes: "The success of the offensive was assured, but it could not have made victory more certain than it already was because Germany accepted all our conditions."

German general headquarters realizing that the divisions on other sectors were exhausted and that its forces were demoralized and worn out, averted a catastrophe by pleading for an armistice. The Excelsior concludes: "The success of the offensive was assured, but it could not have made victory more certain than it already was because Germany accepted all our conditions."

German general headquarters realizing that the divisions on other sectors were exhausted and that its forces were demoralized and worn out, averted a catastrophe by pleading for an armistice. The Excelsior concludes: "The success of the offensive was assured, but it could not have made victory more certain than it already was because Germany accepted all our conditions."

German general headquarters realizing that the divisions on other sectors were exhausted and that its forces were demoralized and worn out, averted a catastrophe by pleading for an armistice. The Excelsior concludes: "The success of the offensive was assured, but it could not have made victory more certain than it already was because Germany accepted all our conditions."

German general headquarters realizing that the divisions on other sectors were exhausted and that its forces were demoralized and worn out, averted a catastrophe by pleading for an armistice. The Excelsior concludes: "The success of the offensive was assured, but it could not have made victory more certain than it already was because Germany accepted all our conditions."

German general headquarters realizing that the divisions on other sectors were exhausted and that its forces were demoralized and worn out, averted a catastrophe by pleading for an armistice. The Excelsior concludes: "The success of the offensive was assured, but it could not have made victory more certain than it already was because Germany accepted all our conditions."

German general headquarters realizing that the divisions on other sectors were exhausted and that its forces were demoralized and worn out, averted a catastrophe by pleading for an armistice. The Excelsior concludes: "The success of the offensive was assured, but it could not have made victory more certain than it already was because Germany accepted all our conditions."

German general headquarters realizing that the divisions on other sectors were exhausted and that its forces were demoralized and worn out, averted a catastrophe by pleading for an armistice. The Excelsior concludes: "The success of the offensive was assured, but it could not have made victory more certain than it already was because Germany accepted all our conditions."

German general headquarters realizing that the divisions on other sectors were exhausted and that its forces were demoralized and worn out, averted a catastrophe by pleading for an armistice. The Excelsior concludes: "The success of the offensive was assured, but it could not have made victory more certain than it already was because Germany accepted all our conditions."

German general headquarters realizing that the divisions on other sectors were exhausted and that its forces were demoralized and worn out, averted a catastrophe by pleading for an armistice. The Excelsior concludes: "The success of the offensive was assured, but it could not have made victory more certain than it already was because Germany accepted all our conditions."

L.S. Ayres & Co.

OPEN DAILY AT 8:30
CLOSE DAILY AT 5:30

L.S. Ayres & Co.

White Underfinery from the Philippines A Welcome Acquisition to January Sale of White

Why You Should Buy Philippine Underwear

You buy what you buy because you have use for it. Philippine Underwear meets a universal demand of women. They prefer it because it is uniformly beautiful and because every garment is made by hand, every stitch of the exquisitely embroidered designs is the hand work of experts. The materials, in quality are quite in keeping with beautifully executed art needlework. In fact, the fine texture of the fabrics, grace and beauty of design that embellish these garments, as well as the needlework, are at once suggestive of QUALITY.

Values That Will Astonish

A year ago, when orders and materials were dispatched to the Philippine islands for the making of these garments, lingerie fabrics were much cheaper than today. That saving in cost is strongly evident in the astonishingly low prices we now quote you.

Nainsooks

Nainsook, fine and sheer, in 36-inch width. Price, $2.48 for a 10-yard bolt.

Nainsook, 36 inches wide, 10-yard bolts in boxes at $2.95 each.

Nainsook, in a 40-inch width; 10 yards in a bolt at $3.50.

Nainsook, in a 40-inch width; 10 yards in a bolt, at $3.75.

This latter is an extra fine quality. —Ayres—second floor.

In Preparation for a Full Year

A year ago last Thursday these undermuslins were ordered. The elaborate hand work required time and patience, and getting the fabrics across the Pacific and getting the garments back required more time and patience. The last group arrived just in time for the annual white sale.

Longcloths

One lot of longcloth, in 10-yard bolts, 36 inches wide; price $1.95 a bolt.

One lot of longcloth, 36 inches wide; at $2.25 for a 10-yard bolt.

One lot of longcloth, 36 inches wide; a 10-yard bolt for $2.50.

One lot of longcloth, 36 inches wide; a 10-yard bolt at $2.75.

One lot of longcloth, 36 inches wide; a 10-yard bolt at $3.50. —Ayres—second floor.

Domestic Undermuslins at Reduced Prices

Envelope chemises are priced at 95c.

Envelope chemises and nightgowns at $1.45.

Envelope chemises and nightgowns at $1.95.

These will be on special bargain tables—an alluring array of remarkable values. Large sizes are plentiful. —Ayres—Lingerie section, third floor.

If You Will Need Rugs Later You Would Best Buy Them Now

Prices on Fine Grade Rugs are Reduced

Rich and deep Wiltons, Axminsters, Body Brussels, velvets and seamless Brussels in the newest patterns and designs, many of which are Persian and Chinese effects, are sharply reduced in price. It will be to your advantage to make your selection for later use now.

9x12 fine grade worsted Wiltons at $89.50.

9x12 genuine heavy wool Wiltons at $60.00.

9x12 chintz body Brussels at $39.50.

12x15 Axminster, oriental patterns, at $65.00.

11.3x12 Axminster, oriental designs, at $38.50.

9x12 Axminster and seamless velvets at $33.50.

8.3x10.6 Axminster rugs, oriental designs, at $29.50.

9x12 seamless Brussels rugs at $27.50.

Have You Considered Cocoa Mats

for protecting your floor and floor coverings? Small sizes are priced at $1.15. Larger ones are shown at $1.40, $1.75, $2.50 and upward to $6.00. —Ayres—Fourth floor.

A Sale of Dress Cottons

These wash goods, practical, year-round dress fabrics, are to be sold on the basis of their low cost. Gingham, Dimities, Silk and Cotton Crepes, Chambrays, Ratines, Satens and other wash fabrics.

At 15c, 19c, 25c, 29c, 39c and 59c a yard

These Three Groups are Especially Important

AT 15c—Gingham cloth in plain colors, 27 inches wide, for aprons, dresses or children's clothes.

AT 25c—Spring style ginghams in plaids, stripes and plain tints; good and very cheap.

AT 29c—Silk striped voiles, white grounds with colored stripes or colored grounds with white stripes.

While, collectively, there are thousands of yards in this purchase, bolts are mostly small, so early choosers will profit by great variety. —Ayres—Second floor.

"WELCOME HOME"

Flags and Banners

Made to Order

Regular sizes—

6x9 feet. 10x15 feet.

9x12 feet. 40x60 feet.

Special Sizes Made to Meet

Every Requirement

The "Boys" Are Coming Home

Just now this is the big outstanding fact—a fact of such tremendous importance that it will affect practically every home and business house in Indiana.

The welcome extended to our returning boys must be a royal one. Every home and every business house will want to display on these "Welcome Home" flags.

We make them in our own shop of fast color materials. Any size you may desire. There is going to be a big demand for these flags. Order yours now—today.

If desired our representative will call at your place of business and should you require a flag of unusual dimensions we can make it for you. As an example, we have an order to make immediately a flag 27 feet wide by 195 feet in length.

—Ayres—Basement.

Window Treatments, Simple in Kind

Two Ready-Made Curtain Specials

Fifty pairs of plain hemstitched curtains are priced at $2.50 a pair. One hundred pairs of ruffled swiss curtains are shown at $2.25 a pair.

Curtainings at Lowered Prices

Extra good quality of marquisette, dainty and pretty, 25c a yard. Plain white scrim, than which nothing is more serviceable, 12c a yard.

Bedroom and Dining Room Furniture

Handsome, completely matched suites, in mahogany and walnut, for the bedroom and dining room, are ranged in price from $264.00 to $550.00. —Ayres—Fourth floor.

Need Toweling?

Huck, Crash and Turkish—a White Sale

100 dozen all cotton huck towels, size 17 1/2 x38 inches, are extra values at 29c each or $3.00 a dozen.

50 dozen hemstitched, extra fine huck towels, all cotton in size 18x32 inches, are priced three for $1.00.

1,000 yards of all linen bleached crash toweling, suitable for tea towels, hand towels and roller towels; very soft and absorbent. Price 28c a yard.

One lot of all linen huck towels, in size 18x30 inches; extra fine quality. Price 69c each.

One lot of all linen crash hand towels; size 20x35 inches. Special selling price—50c each.

One lot of all linen guest-size huck towels. Priced at 50c and 60c each.

Figured huck towels or Turkish towels are priced at 25c each, or 5 for $1.00.

—Ayres—Street floor booth and second floor.

The New Blouse Styles Are Fascinating, $5.95 upward to $29.50

</